

5 THINGS TO DRAW

for the holidays

bette fetter

*Author, Speaker and Education Expert
Founder & CEO of Young Rembrandts*

Introduction.

The holidays bring a flurry of activity, which is often accompanied by an overwhelming amount of anticipation & excitement in children. This eBook is designed to help your kids channel their excess energy, into time spent drawing and learning.

This book is for everyone. It's for the art kids that can't get enough art. It's for the kids that always want to learn more. It's for the kids that need a bit of confidence building. And it's for the kids that need some time away from the TV and video games. It's even for mom and dad.

Drawing is a universal language. It's a way to explore and express ourselves. And it's supposed to be fun. Everyone can draw and these step-by-step lessons will show you how. With this eBook your child will learn to draw 5 different holiday characters, again and again. While they spend time making great holiday art – you can turn their art into decorations for your home, gifts and even the family greeting cards.

Drawing is the place to start.

Everything in art starts with a drawing. But drawing is really not that hard - once we know how to see. Learning to draw is about learning how to see...

Preschool kids are drawn to pencil and paper to tell their stories. They delight in drawing pictures of their family, their house, pets and imaginary characters. But as kids get older, they grow discouraged when they can't draw what they can see, or draw it the way they want to. This is when the fun goes out of art. It's when many kids decide they're just not that good at it. It's when they stop drawing. They stop making art.

There are tremendous academic and social benefits to participating in the arts. Learning to draw helps kids slow down, improves handwriting, attention to detail, along with art & visual skills. When we teach children how to draw, we keep them doing art - with confidence.

Young Rembrandts

Find drawing classes in your area.

How art makes us smart.

Art kids see the world in Technicolor, full of rich pattern and detail. For them, the world is alive, always full of creative energy and ideas.

I was an art kid. You may have one of these kids. Art kids love to see, make and do art. They have rich imaginations and unique ways of seeing and doing things. Art kids see the world in Technicolor, full of rich pattern and detail. For them, the world is alive, always full of creative energy and ideas.

This way of seeing is about much more than art. It's a way of thinking that profoundly affects everything they do – in and out of school. Art kids are right-brain, visual thinkers. They need to see to think. They need to see what they're learning. Doing art and making art – is about seeing - and is essential to success in school.

There are times art kids can have a hard time in school. Their way of seeing and thinking may be misunderstood or undervalued. I assure you - the way visual kids see and think are tremendous assets that will serve them well all through their lives and careers.

For now, it's time to think about the holidays! Sit back and relax and get your kids ready to draw, while you do the things you need to do. Or better yet – learn to draw with your kids.

Read more...
www.bettefetter.com

01 Draw a snowman.

02 Draw a reindeer.

03 Draw an elf.

04 Draw a nutcracker.

05 Draw a santa.

Info

bette fetter

*Author, Speaker and Education Expert
Founder & CEO of Young Rembrandts*

blog

www.bettefetter.com

contact

bette@bettefetter.com

facebook

www.facebook.com/BetteFetterAuthor

twitter

@BetteYR

pinterest

www.pinterest.com/BetteFetter